Adams County

Due to continuing concerns of coronavirus (COVID-19), county leadership made the decision to extend the building closures for many county locations through May 31, with the intent to reopen buildings Monday, June 1. The Sheriff, District Attorney, Coroner, and Justice Center will remain open.

In addition, Tri-County Health Department extended Governor Polis' Stay-at-Home Order through Friday, May 8, two weeks longer than the statewide Stay-at-Home Order, which expired Sunday, April 26. Polis directed local public health agencies to make determinations that best meet the needs of their respective communities. Adams County residents will remain under a Stay-at-Home Order through Friday, May 8.

To help our businesses reopen, an exception to the Stay-at-Home Order allows non-critical businesses to offer curbside delivery of products. Travel to these businesses to pick up goods will also be included in the definition for necessary travel.

While county buildings are closed, many services and resources are still available to residents. Access Adams Online to take care of many services in the comfort of your home. If you are in need of rent or mortgage assistance, or other resource during this difficult time, visit the county's new COVID-19 website (links below).

Jefferson County

Jefferson County Public Health (JCPH) has issued a public health order extending the state's Stay-at-Home order in Jefferson County through May 8, 2020, with a key revision to support non-Critical businesses. This extension will help protect our community from COVID-19 as we continue to work aggressively to reduce the high rates of the virus in our county and across the Denver Metro Area.

The key difference between the statewide Stay-at-Home order and the Jefferson County extension, though, is the allowance for non-Critical Businesses to begin to offer curbside delivery of products. Additionally, travel to pick up these goods is now included in the definition for necessary travel.

In addition, extending the order for a brief period will allow more time for JCPH to develop and implement strategies in partnership with our business community on how to safely reopen, as well as to communicate with the public about the most effective ways to protect themselves in the face of a rapidly changing pandemic. It will also allow us to ensure our strategies are equitable and reflect the needs of our community as a whole.
